2014 ITA Arbitral Award Enforcement Survey

David Winn (The Center for American and International Law) · Tuesday, April 22nd, 2014 · Institute for Transnational Arbitration (ITA), Academic Council

As part of the 26th Annual ITA Workshop taking place in Dallas on June 18-20 2014, we have prepared a survey on the experiences of arbitration practitioners with enforceability of arbitral awards in the recent past. In some respects, this builds on excellent work done in the 2010 survey of Queen Mary College/PWC, although it seeks to go into greater detail on specific experiences within key enforcement jurisdictions.

Our hope is to maximize the value of the survey by soliciting responses from a broad range of personnel within the international arbitration community. In order to achieve the desired goal, we ask both (a) that you respond to the survey, which should take only a few minutes, and (b) that you circulate the survey within your institution and/or distribute it to your organization's external contacts who may have interest or connection to the this topic. As a member of the international arbitration community, you are ideally placed to assist in distributing this survey to other likely respondents around the world.

Your participation, and the participation of others in your organization and others you know, is essential to make the results of this survey substantive and insightful. The identity of all survey responders will be kept confidential and responses will not be attributed in the published results. If you have specific questions about the survey or about inviting others to participate, please contact ITA Director David Winn (dwinn@cailaw.org).

Please click here to open the survey. We will very much appreciate receiving your completed survey responses by May 1.

The results will be presented on June 19 at the 2014 ITA Workshop and published shortly thereafter.

Thank you in advance for your participation.
